Quotes from Actual Performance Appraisals

Since my last report this employee has reached rock bottom and has started to dig.

I would not allow this employee to breed.

This employee is really not so much of a has-been but more of a definitely won't be.

This employee works well when under constant supervision and cornered like a rat.

When this employee opens her mouth it seems that this is only to change whichever foot was previously in there.

This young lady has delusions of adequacy.

This employee sets low personal standards and then consistently fails to achieve them.

This employee should go far - and the sooner he starts the better.

And our personal favorite –

This employee is depriving a village somewhere of an idiot.
